No. 17

Issue 2.

1st February, 1966.

EXTRACTS FROM FOREIGN AIRWORTHINESS DIRECTIVES

I General

1.1 The present system of issuing extracts from Airworthiness Directives was set up at a time when relatively few foreign aircraft were being imported into this country. It has now extended to some seventy individual folders covering aircraft and associated systems. In bulk this represents approximately 1,500 pages and, unless the system is changed, the volume is likely to continue to increase in size.

1.2 In the circumstances it has been decided to rearrange the information in a more compact form. In the new format all mandatory information in respect of foreign constructed aircraft and associated systems will be contained in one volume of approximately 250 loose-leaf pages.

2 Compliance The Board requires compliance with these extracts either prior to the issue or reissue of certificates of airworthiness or at the period specified in the extract concerned.

3 Presentation The volume will be divided into three main sections, i.e. Commonwealth, Europe and United States of America. Each main section will be sub-divided into aircraft, engines, propellers, aircraft equipment, general, instruments and radio, and arranged in alphabetical order with its own index. The volume as a whole will have a master amendment list and each new or revised page will be endorsed with the amendment list number on the bottom left-hand corner. It will be the responsibility of the recipient to keep this list amended.

4 Method of use The individual list for any given type of aircraft contains only information relating to the airframe and aircraft systems. Thus to establish the complete list of mandatory modifications for that aircraft, reference must also be made to the appropriate lists for engines, propellers, aircraft equipment, general, instruments and radio.

- 5 Amendments The amendment system is to be changed so that amendments will be sent out by the Board as soon as the relevant information becomes available from the Foreign Airworthiness Authority. This will mean that the volume will be amended with much greater frequency than with the quarterly service which exists at present.

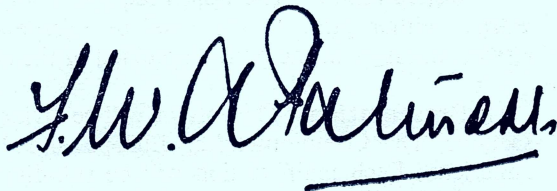

6 Publication and Distribution

6.1 The complete volume of Extracts from Foreign Airworthiness Directives in a folder will be available on 1st March, 1966, at the price of £1 5s. 0d. per copy plus £1 5s. 0d. per annum for the amendment service.

6.2 Applications for copies of the volume of Extracts from Foreign Airworthiness Directives should be addressed to the Secretary, Air Registration Board, Technical Publications Department, Greville House, 37 Gratton Road, Cheltenham, Glos.

- 7 Cancellation This Notice cancels A.R.B. Notice No. 17, Issue 1, dated 1st June, 1964, which should be destroyed.
